Data as at 8:00am AEST. Change is from the previous trading day (excluding the SFE, which is the change during the night session). Source: Bloomberg.

Main Themes: There was little in the way of major economic news to drive market direction last night. Long-term bond yields declined, while shorter term yields were higher. The US dollar declined against a basket of major currencies. A weaker US dollar helped the Aussie rise to its highest level since the first half of August.

Share Markets: Equities extended their sharp November rally ahead of the release of important earnings results. The S&P 500 closed 0.7% higher, the Nasdaq gained 1.1% and the Dow Jones rose 0.6%. The S&P 500 closed at its highest level since early August.

The ASX 200 managed a slight gain yesterday, rising 0.1%. Three sectors finished in the green, including energy, consumer discretionary, and financials. Seven of 11 sectors declined on the day and one was flat. Futures are pointing to a positive open today.

Interest Rates: The 2-10-year yield curve inversion deepened to almost -50 basis points, from around -44 basis points at the open as short-term bond yields were higher, while long-term yields declined. The 2-year treasury yield rose 3 basis points, to 4.91%. The 10-year yield was 2 basis points lower, at 4.42%. Interest rate markets continue to expect no further hikes from the Fed in this cycle. A little over 3.5 cuts are priced to the end of 2024 and almost 4.2 by January 2025.

Australian bond yields mimicked moves in the US. The 3-year government bond yield (futures) rose 1 basis point, to 4.14%. The 10-year (futures) yield was 3 basis points lower, at 4.49%. Interest-rate markets are pricing around a 1 in 4 chance of another hike from the RBA by the middle of 2024.

Foreign Exchange: The US dollar lost ground against major currencies and fell to its lowest level since early September. The USD Index fell from a high of 103.97 to a low of 103.38, before recovering slightly to trade at 103.45.

A weaker US dollar provided support to the Aussie. The AUD/USD pair rose from a low of 0.6494 to a high of 0.6565. It was trading at 0.6562 at the time of writing.

Commodities: Oil prices jumped as traders reacted to news reports noting that OPEC+ member countries may cut production further following a meeting next week. The West Texas Intermediate (WTI) futures prices rose to US$77.60 per barrel. Copper and iron ore were also higher. Gold and coal declined.

Australia: There were no major data releases yesterday.

United States: The Conference Board Leading Index fell to -0.8% in October to 103.9. This followed a -0.7% outcome in September and was below expectations of a similar result. The index has been contracting for every month since April 2022.

Looking at the sub-indices, average consumer expectations, ISM new orders, and stock prices were the biggest drags on the index in the month. Only four of the 10 sub-indices made positive contributions, led by building permits.
